Freezing weather goes, thaw reveals problems

BY DENA BISNETTE

The freeze is over—but the extent of the damages it left behind has not yet been determined.

The damages shut down the Hancock County Courthouse Wednesday after employees reporting to work after their four-day Christmas holiday found out that there was no heat or water in the building.

A six-inch water main under the building and several valves had broken; the building is heated by a boiler system which must have water to work, Hancock County Board of Supervisors President Ronald Cuevas said.

When board attorney Gerald Gex came to the courthouse Wednesday to handle some matters related to his private practice, he attempted to contact the State Attorney General's Office in Jackson to check on the procedure for an emergency closing, but found all government offices there were closed.

The courthouse was closed under a blanket order from Governor Ray Mabus, which granted an extra day of Christmas holidays to any state employees whose offices had suffered freeze damage.

The county determines holidays for its employees by using the state holiday schedule.

The building housing the Hancock County Purchasing Office was also damaged, but because that department's operation is directly involved in repair efforts, the employees were moved to the tax office for the day, Cuevas said.

The tax office was not damaged and remained open Wednesday, as did the Civil Defense office.

Cuevas said a couple of breaks were found at the Hancock County Civic Center, formerly the fairgrounds building, and at the Welfare Department on Necaise Avenue, where a beach maintenance crew was pulled from its regular duties to unload commodities scheduled for a Wednesday morning distribution.

Other buildings fared better, but there were employees on duty all weekend monitoring them, the board president added.

Cuevas said the county's plumbing maintenance is handled through a contract, which should hold down repair costs.

He was concerned that private citizens probably did not fare as well.

"It's going to be a mighty costly Christmas for some people," he said.

He added that the civic center and the National Guard Armory were to be opened as shelters Saturday for people who did not have heat if the need had arisen. A county employee was stationed at the civic center Sunday, but no one needing shelter showed up.

Fire Chief Andrew Lizana, whose department takes calls for water and gas emergencies on weekends, said the usual number of calls averages about two per weekend. His department recorded 63 direct calls or calls forwarded from Bay St.

Louis Police Department between the beginning of the thaw Sunday and Tuesday night.

Redmond said most of the calls were simply requests for water to be turned off at the street until broken pipes could be repaired. The majority of the homes affected were older, raised residences. Many calls were from neighbors reporting problems at unoccupied homes.

He reported one broken water pipe at city hall and a few

Plumbers fight results of freeze

BY DENA BISNETTE

Plumbers were among the busiest people in Hancock County Wednesday as they tried to repair the damages from the freezing temperatures that hit the area during the Christmas holidays.

While field crews were working Wednesday and could not be reached, some of the office employees offered comments on the problems they have seen since temperatures began to come back up.

Marilyn Higgins of Bay Plumbing Company described the aftermath of the freeze as "a nightmare Christmas."

Her husband, Irving, owns the company, and he and his two-man crew have been working from about 7 a.m. or earlier "until they run out of daylight," she said.

"You can't get to all the people who call as quickly as you want to, and there are just not that many plumbers in this area to begin with," she said.

A problem with supply houses running out of the most frequently used parts is also complicating matters.

Calls started coming in Friday as temperatures began climbing back from lows like eight and nine degrees and broken pipes were revealed by the thaw.

Higgins said she was on her

In Bay St. Louis, Public Works Director Norbert Redmond estimated that 10 percent of the city had been affected by the cold. When the thaw began, calls came into his department at the rate of "about two every five minutes."

Christmas Day fire damages residence

BY DENA BISNETTE

A blaze originally reported as a woods fire destroyed part of a Julia Street residence on Christmas Day.

Several Bay St. Louis Fire Department personnel who were off-duty for the holiday came back to work when the blaze was identified as a structure fire, Chief Andrew Lizana stated.

Lizana and Fire Marshal Jay Marsh are investigating the incident as an accidental fire.

It destroyed the rear two-thirds of the wooden house at 324 Julia Street and apparently started in the rear section of the kitchen, Marsh said.

The residents had left the home at about 2:15 p.m. The fire was first reported at 8:28 p.m., Lizana added.

The chief said he was dispatching at the time and sent

Superintendent recovers in Rio de Janeiro hospital

BY JANET MCQUEEN

Hancock County Superintendent of Education Terrell Randolph of Diamondhead remains hospitalized in Rio de Janeiro following a possible heart attack last Thursday.

Language has been a barrier to additional information, according to his sister, Marguerite Burlock of Dubuison.

"It is very hard to get through," she said. "None of the doctors or nurses speak English. A nurse who works for the U. S. Consulate in Rio has served as a translator."

The consulate notified Randolph's family of his hospitalization. According to Burlock, he is the only American patient in the Pro Cardiac Hospital.

There are no telephones in patient rooms and Randolph had to plead with the hospital staff for permission to make a Christmas call home to his mother.

He was to receive the results of diagnostic tests on Tuesday, but the family had received no news as of Wednesday evening.

According to Burlock, he was to be released from intensive care on Monday, but will not be allowed to return to the United States until January 1.

The airlines will not permit him to return until his condition is determined to be stable. It is not definite whether a family member will need to fly to Rio to accompany him on the return trip, according to Burlock.

Plumbing items become scarce

BY DENA BISNETTE

The most sought-after items in Hancock County this week may be plumbing supplies.

Several local plumbers stated Wednesday that they were running out of the most commonly used parts they stock, with the exception of a couple who bought extra supplies after hearing freeze warnings last week.

Part of the problem resulted from a demand for repairs while suppliers were closed for the holidays. Once they opened, they began to run out of repair items.

All stores offering such supplies that The Sea Coast Echo contacted Wednesday reported a higher-than-usual demand.

An employee at Southern Pipe said, "We're out of a lot of stuff," pointing out that the local store is only one in a chain of 50.

The stores receive their parts through a central distributing point in Meridian, and the employee said the central distributor was running out of supplies as well.

He said he did not expect the situation to improve until next week because some of the area's summer residents will be delayed in finding out about damages to their homes.

David Hubbard at Waveland Lumber, where plumbing supplies are usually just one component of the store's total sales, said, "We're like a plumbing store today."

The store's suppliers were closed for inventory between Christmas and the New Year's holiday, but Hubbard telephoned them and several agreed to send whatever could be shipped by United Parcel Service.

"We can get fittings and we're

eight page since Friday in an appointment book which holds about 18 names per pages and that calls finally began to slow down on Wednesday morning.

Jeep Ladner of Jeep's Plumbing, caught at his office as he dropped in to see who else had called, said he would rate the freeze as being as bad as the last one, which he said was in 1982 or 1983.

He said he found that a lot of people had taken more precautions, such as allowing water to run, than they had during the earlier cold snap.

Ladner said Tuesday was the first really busy day due to the thaw, with about 50 calls coming in, but prior to the freeze he had been called upon to drain many houses for summer residents.

He is trying to restore at least cold water to those with multiple breaks in their pipes, repairing at least one bathroom and, in most cases, the kitchens of homes; then capping off other breaks for later repair so he can give emergency relief to more people.

"Some of the houses I've seen are just disastrous," he said, describing ceilings that have fallen in after hot water heaters in attics have ruptured, or extensive damages in homes where residents were away for the holidays.

An office employee at Monti-Carver labelled the situation "strictly a disaster."

She said calls were coming in from all parts of the county.

"We have a lot of people completely without water in Pear-lington, Clermont Harbor, Waveland, Bay St. Louis—it's all over," she said.

"We have over 200 people on our list. We get there and they think they have one broken pipe, and they've lost everything under the house. I'd rather see a hurricane. This is terrible."

Most local plumbers contacted Wednesday reported working most of the Christmas holidays, with some working at least part of Christmas Day itself.

Almost all reported that they expect to see the worst damage in unoccupied houses and believe that some summer residents will not discover all the damage until they check their homes in the spring.

Thoughts on

We have a time-honored custom. It is called "Making New Year's resolutions," "Expressing a New Year's prayer," and "Greeting the New Year with joy."

Making New Year Resolutions might include a plan to: Take time to work—it is the price of success;

Take time to think—it is the source of power;

Take time to play—it is the secret of youth;

Take time to read—it is the foundation of wisdom;

Take time to be friendly—it is the road to joy;

Take time to laugh—it is a great healer.

The New Year's prayer could be:

Let us pray that abundant strength and courage be given to all who work for a world of reason and understanding.

Let us pray that the good that lies in every person's heart may day by day be magnified, that men will come to see more clearly not that which divides them, but that which unites them, that each hour may bring us closer to a final victory—not of nation over nation, but of man over his own evils and weaknesses.

Let us know the joy of this world's beauty that we may live with abiding faith.

Let us pray that the blessing of peace be ours—that we will grow to live in harmony and sympathy with others.

Let us pray that we may plan a future with confidence.

Greeting the New Year with joy is remembering that joy is not in things, joy is within us.

Let us follow the dictates of our desires and remember that our God wishes us happiness. Happy ness is to be shared. Do have a happy New Year!

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

The topic of conversation in Hancock County for the past week has been cold, cold weather.

You know it is cold in Hancock County when the Bay of St. Louis is frozen from one side to the other.

Saturday, Sunday and Monday had to be a three-day record setter for low temperatures in the area.

I can recall single digit temperatures, but not two days in a row.

It was cold here, but, then again in viewing the national weather reports, it was not as cold as in other areas.

One of the major problems for Hancock Countians is the water pipes freezing and then breaking upon thawing.

This is something which happens about once every ten years in the area.

I feel for those folks who have water lines running in their ceilings and have a pipe break that drowns everything in their house.

Gas pressure in Bay St. Louis was very low too, as the incoming pressure dropped one time to nine pounds, according to Norbert Redmond, Public Works director.

Waveland's gas pressure also dropped very low.

I know on Christmas morning I had to light the pilots on two of the office's heaters as they had gone out sometime on Christmas Eve.

I talked to Donald Strong, one of the local postmen, who told me he caught some nice speckled trout near the mouth of the Jourdan River as the ice began to break.

The trout were frozen stiff, according to Strong who is a noted fisherman.

It seems the fish die whenever they are in shallow water because of a lack of oxygen when the water freezes over.

Fish freezing is something that happens with the extreme low temperatures in the area.

The city crews for Bay St. Louis and Waveland did not get a holiday for the Christmas weekend, as they were kept busy doing such chores and turning customers' water on and off.

Local stores which handle pipe fittings were all busy with many of them selling out of certain fixtures.

This is a plumber's dream for a few weeks.

I can recall the late Albert Grass of Waveland working on his water pipes back about 1962 or 1963 when we had the first extreme cold in the area I can remember.

Mr. Grass was a handyman by profession and his house sat up pretty high and had several bathrooms in it.

I think he had some 50 breaks in his pipes, almost had to replace everything. He would fix one break and yell to his son to 'turn it on' and another leak would show and he would say 'turn it off.'

Of course, while all of this was going on his customers were calling him on the telephone and coming to his house to get him to work on their broken pipes.

I will never forget Mr. Grass saying, "I'm gonna fix mine first."

I need not tell you that I am a warm weather person, and those who like cold weather can go north and take this cold weather with them.

ICE EVERYWHERE—The weekend's temperatures dropping into single digits caused the Bay of St. Louis to freeze. These piers in the Cedar Point area of Bay St. Louis appear to be wearing socks on the pilings, caused by the splash of water before freezing. (Echo staff photo by Ellis Cuevas)

Network can help fight drug problems at local level

Any problem can be solved if the right people want to solve it! The right people are those who must wholeheartedly commit themselves now to fighting the war on drugs, beginning at the local level.

Recent drug busts in rural Mississippi counties by the Mississippi Bureau of Narcotics are proof positive that drug pushers are gaining footholds in even the smallest of our communities.

We have allowed the drug problem to reach epidemic proportions, not because it's unsolvable, but because we haven't put forth the necessary effort in our counties and cities to solve it.

We are finally realizing that time has almost run out—that we must wholeheartedly commit ourselves now to fighting the war on drugs, beginning at the local level.

That's where SWEEPS comes in.

SWEEPS (the StateWide Education, Enforcement and Prevention System) is the community arm of Mississippi's Substance Abuse Policy Council. It is not a new organization, but a way to coordinate and combine the efforts of those already involved in fighting drugs with others who would like to get involved.

The idea is to avoid unnecessary duplication of existing services and to provide new services by taking full advantage of all possible local, state and federal resources.

The policy council, appointed last January by Governor Ray Mabus and headed by Attorney General Mike Moore, is a 45-member group of law enforcement officers, educators, service providers, business and industry leaders, religious leaders, prevention organizations, health providers and others.

The group studied Mississippi's drug and alcohol problem and inventoried the available resources for treating it. A Nov. 1 report to the governor and the legislature contained 33 recommendations for better utilization of existing resources and for creation of additional facilities and programs needed in fighting drugs and alcohol.

One of the major recommendations of the group was that each county in the state should develop a committee or task force to coordinate substance-abuse efforts at the local level.

These efforts are now under way. Training sessions have already been held in Hattiesburg and Cleveland, bringing together teams from 14 counties to develop local action plans for fighting drugs. Other sessions are planned for Oxford, Wesson, Starkville, Meridian, Tupelo, Pascagoula and Greenwood.

The new SWEEPS teams will work with the state policy council in implementing the state plans on a local level and on sharing information on successful programs with other counties.

SWEEPS will help local communities help themselves win the drug war. By being part of a larger network, community leaders can direct the fight on the local level with a new feeling of confidence. By contributing what they know and learn, they will help others across the state "SWEEP Mississippi Clean" of drug and alcohol abuse.

To get more information about the SWEEPS program or to volunteer to help organize SWEEPS for your county, contact Betty Daugherty, SWEEPS coordinator, 354-6351, P.O. Box 22947, Jackson, MS 39225.

County bus drivers plead for better roads

Dear Editor,

What would it take to guarantee the safety of our children?

We, the bus drivers of Hancock County, would like to know what it would take for the county to fix the hazardous roads we must travel on each day.

We have been promised that our roads would be repaired. There has been no action taken as of this date, Dec. 21, 1989. Any help in this matter would be appreciated.

Sincerely,
The Bus Drivers

REPORT FROM THE SENATE

by Sen. Vic Franckiewicz Jr.

I am looking forward to my first Legislative Session; we have a full agenda of major issues which will affect Mississippi well into the 21st century. In this pre-session column, I would like to mention some of the concerns which we will be facing as the Session convenes at noon on Tuesday, Jan. 2.

Education: Education is a top priority for the Legislature. Over the past month, we have been carefully reviewing the "BEST" education package proposed by Governor Ray Mabus. He has outlined some outstanding advances in education, and I strongly favor the package.

The most controversial part of the bill is that about one-third of the funding is tied to the lottery. I plan to vote to put the lottery before the people, but it is doubtful that the lottery will pass the Senate.

Car Tags: Several bills have been pre-filed which would lower the fee charged when you purchase a vehicle license plate. The important thing to remember here is that the high cost of the tag comes from local property taxes on the vehicle; these taxes go to support critical public services such as law enforcement and fire protection. If we reduce the cost of the tag, we must find alternatives to make up for the lost revenue.

Drug Abuse: A special committee composed of Senate and House of Representatives members is coming out with a list of recommendations to help in the drug war. These range from education to law enforcement to penalties to rehabilitation.

Hazardous Waste Management: Although less than 10 percent of the hazardous waste generated by industry must be shipped out of state for disposal, many industry leaders say they cannot survive without disposal means.

A crisis situation has arisen because Alabama, which handles 40 percent of this waste, has placed a ban on Mississippi's waste, and it is feared that other states may follow suit. Congress has required each state to submit a plan for how it will manage its hazardous waste over the next 20 years.

The proposed plan for Mississippi includes legislation which sets guidelines for siting a hazardous waste treatment/disposal facility in the state. It sets a timetable in which the state, as a last resort, would site its own facility if private industry does not do so.

Insurance: Some of the issues in this category include: compulsory or "no-fault" auto liability insurance; risk pool to provide health insurance for those unable to obtain coverage; student health care insurance; and establishment of fire department standards.

Public Service Commission Reform: The law which allows the existence of the Public Service Commission will expire Dec. 31, 1990. In preparation for re-enacting the commission, the Senate Public Utilities Committee has been diligently studying all aspects of the Commission, including making it an appointed (instead of elected) commission.

State Employee Salaries: Many state employees have gone several years without a pay raise—and their salaries are generally low to begin with! We will be looking at ways to fund a pay raise.

At the same time, I believe we must address pay equity between different departments and reduce inefficiency in state government by giving capable employees the incentive to produce and by cutting back on unnecessary overhead and support.

A good idea

Legislation being drafted which would mandate drug testing of members of the Mississippi House and Senate and all employees who receive state money is a good idea.

However, the idea poses several questions that need answers:

- * What happens to people who test positive?
- * Are members of state boards who receive expense money included?
- * Is a business receiving a state contract included?

Last week, when America invaded Panama, several young men died and many shed blood. They were after a madman who makes millions running drugs and who has no remorse for innocent victims of this modern-day plague. If representatives of "the people" aren't willing to stand up to drug testing to prove they aren't contributing to that man's efforts, thoughts of those families hovered over loved ones' graves during the Christmas season render a sobering chill.

Despite that, this proposal to test legislators does have the air of political gimmickry; it is needed, if for nothing more than gesture.

Two kinds of juries make justice work

Hancock County Circuit Court and the Hancock County Grand Jury both convene on Monday, Jan. 8, and two types of juries will be empaneled.

According to Hancock County Circuit Clerk Pam Metzler, both types are selected from voter registration rolls. As provided by state law, a jury commission meets once a year to determine how many jurors will be needed.

A court order for the selection of that many jurors is then issued to the circuit clerk's office.

The Mississippi Code provides instructions for the selection of the jurors, describing a formula for determining a code number. If that code number is eight, for example, every eighth name on the voter registration rolls becomes a potential juror.

"It's all random. Sometimes the same person is picked once a year, sometimes twice and sometimes never. That's because the names are always moving on the rolls as we update them or add new voters," Metzler explained.

Jury duty is an option for anyone who is 65 or older. Anyone in that age group who does not wish to serve may return his summons to the clerk's office or mail it back after making a notation on it regarding his age.

A few other groups, such as people with medical problems or those working as ministers, doctors or in other jobs involving being on 24-hour emergency call, are also considered exempt from service.

If a person wishes to be excused for some other reason, a judge in open court can excuse him if he finds the reason valid.

"Nine out of 10 people summoned, after they've served, told me they loved it. They get here scared or nervous and they'd rather be anywhere than on jury duty, but they've come out saying it was a great learning experience," Metzler commented.

The first 18 names selected are designated for service on Grand Juries, which meet in January and July.

A Grand Jury differs from a petit jury in that the Grand Jury hears only one side of a number of cases, while the petit jury hears both sides of only one case.

In a Grand Jury, the law enforcement side presents its case, and if the jurors decide the information is enough to warrant charging the accused person with a crime, they issue a "true bill of indictment."

If there is not enough evidence, a "no true bill" is issued in the case.

The person accused, his attorneys and witnesses for his side are not present before a Grand Jury, which conducts its proceedings behind closed doors.

The Grand Jury also tours all of the county's public buildings, schools and other facilities, making a report on what they find. Metzler said that in the report, the Grand Jury can make suggestions, but can not criticize the department which operates the facility in question.

Grand jurors are empaneled for six months, meaning that they are subject to recall and are asked not to discuss anything they heard during their Grand Jury session until that six months is over.

Metzler said the average session lasts about five days, but the one which begins Jan. 8 could be a few days longer because there are more cases to hear than usual.

Petit jurors are selected every other month for the three-week Circuit Court term. Each week, about 200 people are summoned, and those selected to the jury panels (Groups of 12 with two alternates) serve for one week at a time.

During that week, jurors can be called to hear any case that comes to trial, whether it is a civil or criminal case.

For their convenience, the Hancock County Circuit Clerk's office provides a telephone recording. Any juror who wants to know if he should report to the courthouse may call the recording for instructions.

Types of cases a petit jury might hear include civil suits or criminal matters ranging in seriousness from a DUI appeal to a capital murder.

A petit jury hears both sides of the matter in open court. The person accused is present along with attorneys for the defense and prosecution, various witnesses and even spectators.

The jurors then meet in private to decide only if the person is guilty or not guilty of the specific charges against him. In most cases, the judge handles the matter of sentencing.

Trials may last anywhere from part of one to three days, with some of the more serious matters taking a couple of days longer. In rare cases, such as a capital murder, Metzler said a jury could be sequestered.

Sequestered jurors are usually taken to a hotel to spend nights in order to protect them from outside influences. They are not allowed to watch television news reports and newspaper articles pertaining to the case are removed before the papers are given to jurors. They are also prohibited from discussing the case with anyone.

According to Metzler, sequestered jurors are usually requested by the defense and are only used when a life is at stake, such as in capital murder cases where a guilty verdict may result in a death penalty.

"Nobody is crazy about serving or being taken from their homes, jobs or whatever, but jury duty is the most important part of our justice system," said Metzler. "Without jurors, justice couldn't be done."

expecting another shipment today. We can't get pipe because you can't ship pipe by UPS," he explained.

The store ran out of the more demanded items at 5 p.m. Tuesday.

"Yesterday, they swarmed us. The majority at least got their pipes capped off until they can make further repairs, and we're just sold out of caps."

Hubbard said the last freeze he remembers like this one was on New Year's Day 1984, adding that the requests for plumbing supplies did not slow down until Spring.

Robert Taconi at Taconi's Hardware got another truckload of supplies Wednesday morning, but said they were already running out. He expected demand to slow down today or tomorrow.

Bob Lemoine at Hancock Plumbing called the situation "tough."

"Everybody from Mobile to Houston is out of stuff," he said.

He hoped for some reprieve today with a shipment of C-PVC and well pumps, two of the items people ask for most often.

"The severity of this freeze has been the greatest the local people have ever seen. At least that's what the people coming into my store are telling me," he said.

Jim McDonald at W.A. McDonald and Sons said the store itself was damaged, but repairs were made and when the business opened Wednesday, sales in the plumbing department were naturally brisk.

He said the situation reminded him of a hurricane and that it is the worst freeze he has seen since he has lived in his current home, where he moved in the early 1960s.

At Kent and Sue's Quick Stop in Lakeshore, Craig Sellier said, "We're about out of everything, and now we're just trying to make things work for people."

"There have been a lot of people with busted pipes and pumps, a lot of frozen water and a lot of frozen fish."

The clerk at Kiln Supermarket said her store does not sell plumbing supplies, but a lot of people have come in to ask where to get them. She has been sending them to Alexander Poll Company on Vidalia Road, who called to tell her he was running out of a lot of supplies too.

In Pearlinton, Ronnie Cuevas at Cuevas Grocery stocks plumbing parts and said he was able to get shipments Friday, then nothing was available until Wednesday.

"I'm selling everything I can get," he said.

out the two firefighters on duty, Pam Sanfilippo and Terry McCrory, on the woods fire call.

The fact that it was a structure fire was reported a few seconds later, both by a Bay St. Louis Police officer who saw the blaze from his car and by a youngster, Dillon Lacoste, who spotted the flames from a nearby street and asked his parents to call the fire department.

"The fire did give us a problem because it had gotten into the attic," Lizana explained. Four off-duty firefighters, Alphonse Sheppard, Gary Maurice, Mike Willumitis and Arthur Farve, joined those already at the scene and Audrey McCrory reported to the station to take over dispatching.

Clermont Harbor Volunteer Fire Department also sent two men to provide assistance, Lizana stated.

In unrelated incidents over the holiday weekend, BaySide Park Volunteer Fire Department battled a series of woods fires on Christmas Day. Marsh said no structures were reported damaged.

In addition, a fire in Leetown Friday night destroyed a mobile home. That incident is being investigated by the Picayune Fire Department.

Healthy holiday meals start off New Year right

Practice a few rules for sensible holiday eating and begin 1990 on a health-conscious note, says a University of Mississippi professor of home economics.

Limiting fats, salt and sugar in holiday cooking is an easy step in the right direction. Ole Miss food specialist Charlotte Oakley said, "In overall holiday cooking, it's not difficult to cut back and still have all the flavor left to enjoy."

Unless someone in the family has a medical problem such as diabetes or heart disease, moderation is probably the best rule to go by, she said. For example, if everyone is healthy, don't change over completely to artificial sweetener. Too much artificial sweetener, especially for young children, may be just as harmful as too much sugar.

Mrs. Oakley suggests these hints for healthier eating during the holiday and throughout the new year.

* Turkey—the traditional holiday meat—is one of the best meat choices for good nutrition any time of the year. Ground turkey, turkey sausage and smoked turkey offer different flavors and textures.

Turkey can be substituted for beef and pork in many dishes. Leftover or fresh it can be used in such dishes as pizza, spaghetti and red beans and rice.

* Dressing to be served along with the turkey can be made with low-fat broth. Simply let the turkey cool and skim the fat off the top, leaving all the flavor with less fat and fewer calories.

* Use less sugar when making holiday cookies. In making chocolate chip cookies and with most other cookie recipes, the amount of sugar can be cut in half. The result is a more cake-like textured cookie but with the same flavor.

* Offer fruit-sweetened breads or the English holiday tradition of scones as a dessert alternative. Fruit is a natural sweetener calling for a minimum amount of sugar to give a nice flavor. Bananas, apricots or strawberries are good choices for breads. Try adding raisins and nuts to scones.

* Limit the number of candies and desserts. Instead of turning your kitchen into a confectionery shop, stick with a few of the family's favorites. This will also give the cook more time to spend with the family.

* Prepare holiday punch using half fruit juice—cranberry is a good choice—and half a clear, artificially-sweetened carbonated beverage.

* Take advantage of buying fruit in season. Around the holiday, oranges, grapes and apples are usually at top quality and reasonably priced. Canned fruit packed in its own juice is also a good choice.

* Keep healthy snacks readily available. Rather than stocking bags and boxes of snack food, stick with raw fresh fruits and vegetables. Keep small servings handily refrigerated in plastic bags.

Plain popcorn air-popped without oil is also an excellent snack. A light sprinkling of Parmesan cheese or other seasoning will add flavor with few additional calories.

EDIBLE DECORATIONS—Ruth Thompson, left, and Candy Strahan use a special type of icing to stick candies onto gingerbread houses to decorate their windows, roofs and yards. Thompson said the houses are fairly durable after they are assembled and travel well. She said she makes a limited number of them each holiday season because the houses tend to be particularly time consuming even if they are fun to do. (Echo staff photo by Dena Bisnette)

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire
Caire

Here's wishing a very Happy New Year to one and all, and I hope that your Christmas was as merry-marvelous as mine in spite of that cold weather!

Ours was our customary three-generations family celebration in Mandeville, La., reminiscing, turning our thoughts to loved ones no longer with us, and to others absent from the gathering, as well as making Christmas phone calls to relatives and all of that—just as most of us do at this time of the year.

And, also, just as most of us do, we talked of the coming New Year, and of all our plans and hopes. And, of course, we reminded each other to be sure to eat black-eyed peas on New Year's Day to ensure good luck throughout the new year.

So, we'll be enjoying "Hoppin' John," that old Southern dish of black-eyed peas and rice, a custom said to have originated in the Carolinas long, long years ago.

Some say that the name "Hoppin' John" came about because of the children of the family who would jump up from the table in impatience and hop about; others, that it was the custom for the youngsters to hop around the table before eating the Hoppin' John. And, still others maintain that the dish was so called because the servants would all but hop about in their haste to bring the dishes to the table. No doubt that the tempers of some of the diners may have been a bit short after a festive New Year's Eve!

"Eat black-eyed peas on New Year's Day, and you'll have good luck throughout the year." So goes the old Southern saying. Not that I'm all that superstitious, but you may be sure that the turn of the year's clock will find me ready with the black-eyed peas!

And the collard greens as well, and the cabbage, for wealth in the coming year. In the Carolinas, where "Hoppin' John" is said to have originated, there must always be collard greens—so that there will be the good green of "folding money" in the coming year. Cabbage is also equated with cash—and to enhance the money promise, some of us are careful to place a shiny dime under each plate to further guarantee a supply of money! Whatever, here's:

HOPPIN' JOHN

(Some cooks combine the peas and rice into a sort of jambalaya, or the true "Hoppin' John"—others prefer to serve the peas and rice separately, always with dashes of hot pepper sauce atop.)

- 1 lb. dry black-eyed peas
- 2 qts. water
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 3/4 lb. salt pork or bacon, diced—or ham or whatever seasoning you prefer
- 2 or 3 dried hot red peppers, optional
- 2 Tblsp. butter or bacon drippings
- Pepper to your taste, salt optional
- 1 cup raw rice

I still soak dried beans and peas overnight; other cooks start them in the morning, bring to a boil, turn off for an hour, then proceed to cook.

At any rate, place peas in large, heavy pot, with water to cover. Bring almost to boiling, then turn fire down to simmer. Add the onion, salt pork or bacon or ham, and seasonings, and simmer, covered, for two hours or perhaps a bit longer as needed. Taste, and correct seasonings.

Meanwhile, cook the rice, and serve the peas over the rice, or, add the rice to the peas, and simmer for just a bit, until the liquid is absorbed.

As for the hot peppers, I prefer jalapeno peppers. I crush them a bit, and add to the pot along with the other seasonings. Others prefer to serve the peppers "on the side" or not at all. And sometimes I just add crushed red pepper flakes.

And, in closing, here's another old Southern superstition—full salt shakers at New Year's mean a well-stocked cupboard all year round!

'Must have' cookbooks for any kitchen

Those of us who truly like to cook (at least, most of the time) are regarded as dedicated cooks or "cooking nuts" as you will, but we can read over and enjoy a cookbook with the enthusiasm that others reserve for best-selling who-dunits or romances or history or whatever.

So, I'm sure that you understand my joy these days every time the UPS truck or mailman stops at my house to deliver a review copy of a cookbook from one publisher or another.

I'm usually somewhat generous with these windfalls, after I have read and reviewed them, but I might as well tell you right now, I'll not only refuse to pass on to friends any of the latest copies—I really don't think that I'll even take the chance of lending out my recently arrived copy of The Cook's Book of Uncommon Recipes by Barbara Hill (Sumner House Press, paperback, $9.95).

The author gives us more than 200 uncommon or hard-to-find recipes, listed according to the most important ingredient. A former research librarian, she knows how frantically a cook can hunt for some special recipe amidst the plethora of cookbooks on the shelves.

This is the third book in Hill's series for Sumner House Press. The first, The Cook's Book of Essential Information, is a comprehensive kitchen handbook of measures, cooking tools, nutrition and so on. The nuts and bolts of cookery.

The second in the series, The Cook's Book of Indispensable Ideas, is a cornucopia of basic information for cooks and would-be-cooks. Neither of the first two books contain recipes, but, oh, this third one has a number of them as well as a chapter on "why things go wrong," and what to do about it!

And, another book which gets down to the "nitty gritty" of cooking problems is 1,000 Cooking Substitutions by Debbie Khoe Global Trade Co. Inc., paperback, spiral-bound, $22.05) a project launched with the "Oklahoma Bazaar Fair," a fundraising event for civic groups and churches in that state.

Just released this week, the book is "dedicated to all those who had to drive to the grocery store to finish dinner." I like that—is there one amongst us who hasn't been in that position at one time or another, lacking that one essential ingredient?

minor problems in some of the schools.

GAS PRESSURE DROPS

Redmond said despite all the leaks, there was no serious drop in water pressure, but gas pressure dropped drastically Sunday morning.

The usual pressure is 80 pounds and at about 10 a.m. Sunday, it dropped to a scant nine pounds and held there for about an hour.

Phil Wolfe, administrator at Hancock Medical Center, stated that the hospital switched from its usual heating method, a gas-powered boiler system, to a back-up system powered by fuel oil.

He said the only problem he would have expected had the gas pressure not begun to normalize after the first hour would have been a slow-down in cooking, which would have been done in electrically powered microwave ovens rather than conventional gas ovens.

Redmond said Hotel, Reed Nursing Center stayed on gas heat.

The city crews were preparing for a longer emergency by cutting off some of the commercial buildings where heat is not essential to lives and had asked some of the larger gas users, like St. Stanislaus, to curtail activities as much as possible.

He said the emergency was actually over about an hour after it began.

WAVELAND AFFECTED

In Waveland, Utilities Director Charlie Bourgeois was working on repair calls and could not be reached for comment.

The water and gas department did not count the total calls, but an office employee stated that "they were numerous."

The water pressure, probably as a result of residents leaving faucets and hoses on all night Thursday, and gas pressure both dropped Friday.

Mayor John Longo Jr. said the water pressure problem lasted about 15 minutes due to a well freezing when temperatures dropped to about eight degrees, but the gas problem lasted a couple of hours and resulted from a supplier's curtailment.

Longo said the northeast side of the city was hardest hit because the gas lines end there.

He said he received several hundred calls at home and knows that a similar number came in through the police station.

"I think we had something like this in early 80s, but not this severe. I think the worst was back in '63," Longo said.

A group of employees who were working on their day off to assemble Christmas baskets for the needy ended up spending most of their time answering phones and dispatching crews, the utility employee said.

Some sewer problems occurred at the same time to complicate matters.

CREWS OVERWORKED

The crews have been working around the clock since Thursday, she said, with a few calls still coming in Wednesday.

"It has really been a rough weekend, a rough Christmas for all of our crew," the employee added.

About a quarter of the city has been affected by broken pipes as a result of the freeze and many of the calls involved turning off water until repairs could be made.

She said a number of office employees came in during their holiday to try to help during the aftermath of the freeze.

"The freeze is over, but the work's going to go on for several weeks," Longo commented. "But we don't have anything major."

Students in the Life Skills class at Hancock North Central were entertained at the Waveland home of Mr. and Mrs. Dix Ashman last week. The event was sponsored by the Women of Christ Episcopal Church. The students wore Christmas sweatshirts they painted in a workshop provided by Layne Bourgeois of Sverdrup Technology, HNC sponsor in the Adopt-A-School program. Life Skills classes are taught by Bonita Favre and Katie Reed.

BHS honor society inducts 17 members

The Bay High National Honor Society induction ceremony was held recently in the school's library.

Roger James, Bay High principal, gave the invocation. Kathy Carpenter, president, presented the welcoming address and introduced the following officers: Ana Scafidi, vice president; Angie Weems, secretary; and Jennifer Johnson, treasurer.

son, treasurer.

The officers spoke on the four virtues—service, character, scholarship and leadership—upon which the National Honor Society is based. Guest speaker for the occasion was U.S. Congressman Gene Taylor, whose talk emphasized the importance of being a good leader.

Carpenter inducted the following new members: Chad Albe, David Berry, Matthew Carver, Chris Heaps and Brian Hinkel, seniors;

Johnny Dawson, Michelle Dean, Leslie Diamond, Daniel Fagot, Melanie Howard, Jessica Johnson, Vida Laneaux, Susan Long, Kelly Oliver, Stephanie Shiel, David Weems and Amber Young, juniors.

Other members of the society are Katherine Cuevas, Hollie DeCamp, Tammy Ehrlich, Tonya Hardee, Larry Ladner, Heather Lord, Micah Necaise, Courtney Thomas, Son Van Tran and Denene Ware, seniors.

Freda Cameron, Gloria Dean and Billy Rhodes serve as sponsors of the society.

Museum seeks entries for poster contest

The theme for the Scranton Museum's third annual environmental awareness poster contest is "Stash Your Trash." This contest, in conjunction with the museum's marine debris educational program will help promote an increased awareness of the problems created by trash in Mississippi waters.

Each entrant should draw or create a scene that illustrates littering as it occurs in Mississippi. The scene should include a body of water in Mississippi (i.e. lake, river, bayou, Mississippi Sound, Gulf of Mexico), marine debris or trash and the results of such littering on our environment.

The contest will be open to students in grades K-6. Each grade will be judged separately. Then finalists from each grade will be recognized with the top three posters receiving prizes. A grand prize winner and runner-up will also be selected from all entries.

All posters must be on paper 18" x 24" or smaller. Student's name, address, telephone number, school name, grade and teacher's name must appear on the back of each poster. Posters will be judged on creativity, artistic ability and originality. Winning posters will be on display at the Scranton Museum March 6 through Apr. 29.

Mail entries to "Stash Your Trash" Poster Contest, Scranton Museum, P.O. Drawer 908, Pascagoula, MS 39567. Entries may be mailed together as a class or individually. All posters must be received by Feb. 19. Winners will be notified on or about March 1.

Pass schools solicit input on education plan

On Thursday, Jan. 4, the Pass Christian Public School District will begin the process of revising its Five-Year Education Plan.

All persons who are interested in participating are urged to attend this meeting which will be held at the Pass Christian Elementary School in the Board Room at 6:30 p.m.

The Five-Year Education Plan was developed last year to identify the school district's strengths and needs and to develop goals, objectives and strategies for meeting those needs.

On Jan. 4, a meeting will be held to revise the plan. There will be 17 special committees and a steering committee to complete this process. All interested parties are urged to participate and to become involved in one of these committees.

This long-range plan will serve as the blueprint for improving educational opportunities for all students.

Further information may be obtained by calling Dr. Loris

Broome, assistant superintendent, at 452-7271.

TIME OUT

By Dena Bisnette

With the cold snap last week, sportsmen may be a bit more reluctant than usual to go hunting, but I know some of them will go anyway.

I have already had to cover the story on the deaths of three youngsters from hypothermia and the rescue of one adult hypothermia victim found out in the Louisiana marshes, so be careful out there.

Hunters are among the most sensible people I know when it comes to dressing warm, but they can run into unexpected weather conditions just like the rest of us.

The best way to prevent frostbite, of course, is to keep as much skin covered as possible. If the exposed skin gets red and painful, frostbite may be starting. If it turns white or blotchy in color and goes numb, you might have an advanced case.

From what I have been able to learn about hypothermia, uncontrolled shivering precedes it, but when the shivering stops and the person becomes disoriented, he may lose consciousness. Warming the person by using external means may help in the first stage, but if it goes any farther, the hypothermia victim should be taken to a hospital as soon as possible.

One way to be safer is, of course, to bring someone with you if you plan on being out in extreme cold. And, don't forget to consider the wind chill factor.

Have a happy and safe New Year and to those of you who are going out there, good hunting.

Results of the Pass to Bay Run, sponsored by Hancock Bank and hosted by Gulf Coast Running Club, showed a pretty good hometown participation and quite a few landed in the top three of each division.

Among the male runners who came out on top were Mark Koch of Bay St. Louis, second in the 25-29 division with 38:48; Herbert Smith of Pass Christian, second in the 45-49 with 44:38; and Bill Morse of Bay St. Louis, second in the 60-and-over with 1:03:28.

Those who did well in the female divisions included Jennie Delk, of Bay St. Louis, second in the 25-29 division with 55:22; Lisa Wisniewski of Bay St. Louis, third in the 30-34 with 50:43; and Melva Fisher of Bay St. Louis and Pat Hillier of Pass Christian, first and second respectively in the 40-44 with times of 55:57 and 1:03:28.

There's also the Last Chance to Run or Walk at 9 a.m. Saturday. The race will be run on John Lee Road in North Gulfport and is sponsored by Gatorade and Road Runners Club of America.

Gulf Coast Running Club is hosting, with entry fee $3 for members and $4 for nonmembers. Anyone who joins Gulf Coast Running Club on race day and pays annual dues can enter free.

The awards ceremony on this one ought to be fun, because nobody will be sure just what they're getting; the awards are going to be a potpourri of trophies and medallions left from other races.

For information, call Lindo Sullivan at 832-6701 or Denise Longino at 392-4412.

THE AMAZON

When seasonal rains sweep across South American rain forests, the Amazon River and its tributaries overflow, creating wonderlands where wildlife thrives in astonishing numbers and diversity.

National Geographic's premiere special of its silver anniversary season, "Amazon: Land of the Flooded Forest," journeys into these forests where land and water meet to create a unique ecosystem at 9 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 10 on Mississippi ETV.

Now Phone Service Comes In Your Favorite Calling Patterns.

Tailored To Save

Economy Service You don't make many local calls? Economy Service can help you trim your phone bill down to size — while expanding your local calling area.

Under the new Area Calling Plan, Economy Service turns nearby long distance numbers into local calls at lower local rates. You can call these areas without dialing "1" before the number. Just dial the seven-digit phone number the same as you would when making any other local call.

Designed For Versatility

Standard Service Well suited to the phone styles of those who make more calls, Standard Service stretches the savings with a discount calling package. It also expands your local calling area, turning nearby long distance numbers into local calls at lower local rates. Instead of dialing "1" before the number, you dial just seven digits as you would when making any other local call.

The Area Calling Plan. A New Style Of Saving!

South Central Bell's Area Calling Plan gives you two new ways to save on phone service. It expands your local calling area so you save on calls to many numbers that were previously long distance. And it gives you more control over your local phone bill. If you use your phone less, you pay less.

With the Area Calling Plan, one phone style doesn't have to fit all. Now you have a choice. And the new plan has been designed in two different versions, so you can tailor your phone service to your individual calling patterns.

All telephone customers in this area will receive information in the mail that explains the benefits of the Area Calling Plan. We think you'll find it helpful in matching your calling style to the phone service that fits you best.

If you prefer a set monthly rate and don't make many long distance calls to nearby cities, Flat Rate Service will continue to be available. Your local calling area will remain the same as before.

For more information, call at no charge 1 557-6500 (residential customers) or 1 557-6000 (business customers).
